Dell Punch-out: IE Message Box for Blocked Content

When in the Dell punch-out site, click the “Customize” link offered for the various computers, laptops, and accessories.

- The page returns an IE message box at the bottom of the webpage:
  - For IE10 in Win 7 the message reads:
    “Internet Explorer blocked this website from displaying content with security certificate errors.”
  - For other versions of IE, the message box has been reported to convey slightly different text
- Even though the message appears on the screen, the user can click on available options and navigate throughout the site without touching the message box or removing it from the screen.

To remove the message box from the screen:
- Click on the gray “X” in the upper-right corner of the box.
- The message box closes and the user is able to access the content and navigate throughout the site. Please note the subsequent behaviors of the message box:
  - The message box reappears when the user completes, exits, or cancels the Dell punch-out session.
  - The message box opens again the next time the user accesses the Dell punch-out and clicks on the “Customize” link.
